

Pursuing Peace

As Georgia's governor, as 39th U.S. president, and as a private citizen, Jimmy Carter has tenaciously championed human rights and world peace. Whether negotiating in Africa or in his own backyard, Carter works to transform hopes and dreams into reality.

After leaving the White House, Jimmy and Rosalynn Carter established the nonprofit Carter Center. They work together throughout the world to advance peace and improve health by monitoring elections, mediating between warring parties, preventing or eradicating debilitating disease, and helping poor farmers in developing nations to increase food production.

Through their work at The Carter Center, Jimmy and Rosalynn Carter have traveled the globe helping the world's "forgotten people" improve their own lives.

As president, Jimmy Carter negotiated a peace agreement between Israel and Egypt.

It is the hopes and dreams, doubts and fears, courage and tenacity, and quiet commitment of ordinary people that determines the destiny of the world. Jimmy Carter
